Comments to the author
Reviewer 1: Dear Authors,

Although the idea under consideration in the study is good for examination, the aspects of the manuscript need more dedicated work.

- 1) Although I am not qualified to evaluate the methodology, the presentation of the approach is not well established.
- 2) The hypotheses of the investigation would need to be substantially supported with literature.
- 3) The discussion of the finding is too narrow and lacks proper significant justification.
- 4) Moreover, the conclusion section is largely substandard.

Comments to the author

Reviewer 2: The issue of new capital in Indonesia is still new thus it is good to have this discussion. The abstract is informative and have necessary information about the article. The article already discusses literature about the new capital city in Indonesia (IKN). However, Indonesia is not the only country that build new capital cities. It is good if literature about other countries' experience in capital city development or relocation is also presented.

In the method section, the data analysis technique has been explained well. Needs more clarity on what basis three steps were taken i.e., Identify themes, Cases, attribute classifications, and Theme mapping. Literature supporting this decision would strengthen the argument. The data collection is somewhat unclear. It is stated that the data mainly from Presidential Regulation No 63 of 2022, but later on it also mentioned NCapture for website screenshots. Seems that it is not only about the presidential regulation but also "website containing relevant document", then what is considered as "relevant document" here? need clarity on that part as well. This section should be enriched with the presence of validity/reliability or so-called trustworthiness of this study.

Qualitative approach is the nature of this study; hence it is acceptable if hypothesis is not stated. In this research the objective also mentioned in the introduction section. However, it is not clearly stated what is the benefit of knowing the "gaps of previous research?" what are the practical implications of this knowledge? The statement about "find out government's urgency, efforts and challenges" needs to be explained in detail.

Figures and Tables Rather than writing "...which are described in figure as follows" it would be clearer if written directly the figure number, for example. "...which are described in Figure 3"

Results / Data Analysis In the early part of the result and discussion section, it is good to have a description of what has already been taken during research. So that readers can get more information about the process to get the data.

As mentioned in the method section, this study would be a document analysis of presidential regulation, however in this section barely can see the data analysis. More data is about the previous studies regarding new capital (IKN) studies. If possible, the data from Presidential Regulation should be more presented rather than relied on prior studies.

The discussion has been presented quite well and supported by various literature. Hence, some of the writer's argument has been backed up by prior studies. Unfortunately, some data presentations in this section are somewhat still lacking. It would be more interesting if the discussion is based on data findings and then supported by prior studies as the argument.

Some conclusion shows the implication of a study that has been conducted. In this part, it is barely seen how's the implication of this research either in practical terms or in the body of knowledge. It is also advisable that suggestion for further research is written in this section.

Both reviewers are mixed generally supportive of the paper but both identify issues that require addressing prior to the paper being considered further.

If you resubmit the paper, please respond in detail to the comments of the reviewers and indicate clearly any changes to the text (e.g., in red).

Comments to the author

Reviewer 2: In the methodology part, the author better add literature on validity and reliability to support their argument. Some readings put inter-rater reliability as means to ensure reliability. How about here? what kind of technique that the author use? Have it already used by other studies?

As document analysis the author can directly state which article of the regulation support their findings. For example in Government Effort, they mention about four urgencies. However it is very limited information how does they come to such conclusion. Which part of the presidential regulation support their four claims on government effort. Similar case occurs in other subsection in the result and discussion section. It is better of the author add the steps to get into the findings on each subsection.

The writing has been improved from the previous submission. However there are some details in result and discussion that should be added.

Comments to the author

Reviewer 3: Great paper. Please fix the following comments. Methodology: the second line under methodology should be re-checked. Introduction: the forth paragraph highlights little research in the field. The author should justify this statement with literature. Literature review should be included, especially empirical reviews.

Thank you for your constructive response to the earlier round of reviewer comments. There remain some minor issues to address before the paper can be considered further.
