Keywords: supply chain management; competitive advantage; organizational performance

Abstract: This research's main objective is to investigate supply chain management's influence on competitive advantage and organizational performance. In addition, this research aims to examine how the influence of supply chain management on organizational performance is mediated by competitive advantage. This investigation was carried out on Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) located in Takkalasi Village, Barru Regency, totaling 85 MSMEs. Research data was collected by distributing questionnaires to owners or managers of SMEs in the Barru Regency who were registered in the MSMEs Database of the Barru Regency Cooperatives and SMEs Service in 2022. The research findings showed that there was quite a large impact on the supply chain. management on competitive advantage and organizational performance. Additionally, it is observed that competitive advantage plays an important role in influencing organizational performance. Specifically, competitive advantage was found to mediate the relationship between supply chain management and organizational performance.
